INTRODUCTION

In 1949, the late Christopher U. Faye published a list of the incunabula owned by the University of Illinois Library and the Museum, under the title: Fifteenth Century Printed Books at the University of Illinois (Urbana, Ill., University of Illinois Press). He listed 431 books--not a large collection, to be sure, but a significant one. Since that time, chiefly as a result of the interest and encouragement of Dr. Robert B. Downs, Dean of the University of Illinois Library and Library School, 1943-1971, the number of books published before 1501 acquired by this Library has more than doubled. Indeed, in 1964, according to F. R. Goff's Incunabula in American Libraries (New York, 1964, p.xvii), this collection, credited with 890 volumes, was ranked ninth among all American libraries in its holdings of 15th-century books. Since then, 193 volumes have been added, making a total of 1083. It seems appropriate, therefore, to bring Mr. Faye's list up to date and to provide the Rare Book Room of the Library with a complete catalogue, with adequate indexes, of all the incunabula in its possession.

In order to avoid any misrepresentation, it must be pointed out that the figure 1083 does not quite accurately represent the extent of the collection. There are forty-two fragmentary copies of only one, or a very few, leaves. These titles are indicated by an asterisk (*) preceding the entry. But since a single leaf may sometimes prove helpful in the study of fifteenth-century printing, it seemed advisable to include them, while warning the user of the catalogue of their fragmentary condition. There have been included also 16 titles which are customarily counted as incunabula, but which are now known, or believed to have been printed in the 16th century. These books have been designated by + preceding the entry.

An analysis of the collection reveals a fairly large number of titles (103) otherwise unrecorded in North American collections, according to F. R. Goff's Third Census (1964), Supplement (1972) and Annotated Third Census (1973). These titles are indicated by "o" preceding the entry. Eight of the 103 do not even appear in the catalogues of the chief European collections. These apparently unique items are designated by "ø" preceding the entry.

A few famous names appear in the list of former owners of some of the titles in this catalogue. Among these are: Jacopo Filippo Foresti (1434-1520), the author of the first universal chronicle of the Renaissance, whose autograph appears in Koberger's 1483 edition of Vincent de Beauvais, Speculum historiale (no.1061); the Basel printer, Johann Froben (d.1527), who stamped an impression of his signet ring and signed his name in the copy of Giovanni Tortelli, Orthographia. Venice, 19 Dec.1495 (no.1021); Paolo Giovio (1483-1552), Bishop of Nocera and celebrated historian, who annotated the copy of Lactantius, Opera. Venice, 1490 (no.577); Philipp Melancthon (1497-1560), scholarly leader of the Reformation, who scribbled interlinear glosses and occasional marginal notes in Plautus, Comoediae. Venice, 1499 (no.774); John Ker, 3d duke of Roxburghe (1740-1804), during the sale of whose library in 1812 the Roxburghe Club was founded, whose arms are stamped on the covers of Aristophanes, Comoediae. Venice, 1498 (no.41); Harvard professor, Charles Eliot Norton (1827-1908), whose bookplate appears in the famous 1499 Aldine edition of Francesco Colonna, Hypnerotomachia Poliphili (no.283); the bibliographer, Gilbert R. Redgrave (b.1844), who penned extensive notes in Petrus Comestor, Historia scholastica. Augsburg. 1473 (no.749) and in Jacopo Publicio, Artes orandi. Venice, 1482 (no.803); Edward Gordon Duff (1863-1924), the authority on English printing, whose autograph ex libris appears in Ausonius, Opera. Parma, 1499 (no.86) and in Domizio Calderino, Commentarii in Juvenalem. Venice, ca.1476-77 (no.195); and George Sarton (1884-1956), author of the definitive history of science, whose bookplate and autograph are found in a 1486 Venetian edition of Imitatio Christi (no.506). It is amusing to find, in the second volume of the 4-volume Latin Bible printed by Grüninger in Nuremberg, 3 Nov.1492 (no.141) the following note: From the ship's library of the Santa Maria. 1491. Azores!

The arrangement of this catalogue differs from that of 1949, which followed the Proctor order, providing a sort of history of printing by country, city, and printer. For books not seen by Proctor and for those now assigned to printers other than those chosen by him, Mr. Faye found it necessary to invent new numbers in order to place the books under their proper printers, and to make numerous cross references from the original numbers. Such a system is even more awkward today than it was then, because of the fuller knowledge of printing since the publication of Proctor's Index, 1898-1903. That order has, therefore, been rejected in favor of an alphabetical list by author or other entry word. The Proctor number, when available, has been included in the list of authorities for each title, but in the absence of such a number, no attempt has been made to invent one. An Index by Country, City, and Printer has been provided, but it also has been arranged alphabetically by country, rather than chronologically by the date of the introduction of printing in each country.

The Index of Titles, which has been appended, may appear to be an aberration, but it has been found helpful in identifying fragments and imperfect copies, and in giving a general view of the scope and concentration of the collection.

I want to express my sincere gratitude to N. Frederick Nash, Rare Book Room Librarian, and to the other members of the Rare Book Room staff, Mrs. Mary Ceibert and Miss Louise Fitton, for their generous cooperation and assistance in the conduct of this project, and to Mr. Allan Eckel for typing the manuscript.
